How much history has been lost because the actors themselves failed to make a record of the parts they played upon the stage. How precious are the random memoirs, scattered letters, and fugitive documents from the past that remain to be scraped together. If only we had a CALYX for each of Washington and Lee's two hundred years what priceless information and inspiration they would contain. So this Bicentennial CALYX with its forerunners and successors, fills a need both for ourselves and for posterity. May it be but one in a never-ending series. Forsitan et haec olim.

WILLIAM GLEASON BEAN

In every institution of learning there are a few teachers who by their character, personality, integrity, and challenging minds tremendously influence the intellectual development of their students. In Washington and Lee, William Gleason Bear is one of those treasured instructors.

He exemplifies the noble qualities of a southern gentleman. In his teaching he impresses forever upon the minds of his students the fundamental importance of courage, honor and dignity.

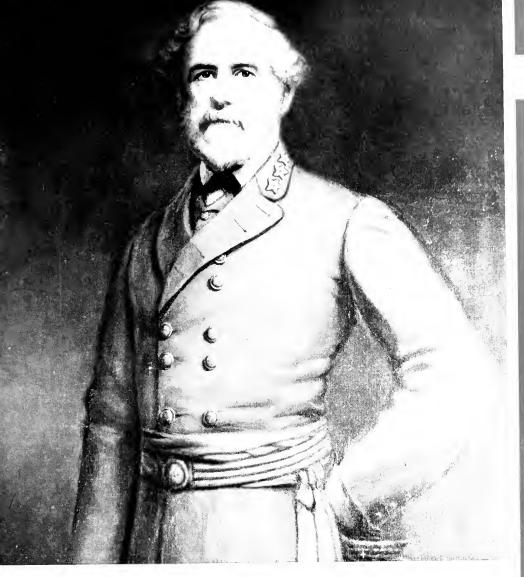

To William Gleason Bean, educator, historian, and friend and counsellor to a generation of Washington and Lee sons, this the Bicentennial Edition of the CALYX is respectfully dedicated.

General George Washington was the first benefactor of Washington and Lee. Politely refusing to accept shares in the James River company voted him by the Virginia legislature for his services in the Revolution, he directed that the shares be given to the then Liberty Hall Academy. This was the first gift of securities to an American institution of learning. Out of gratitude the name of Liberty Hall Academy was changed to Washington College in 1813.

General Robert E. Lee's gift was one of service and devotion and love. The growth of the school during his presidency was phenomenal, but more important he left for eternity the imprint of his character upon this institution and its sons. The heritage of Robert E. Lee is our most prized possession.

1. PROLEGOMENA

The region of the Valley of Virginia comprising Augusta and Rockbridge Counties was settled in the eighteenth century by hardy Scotch-Irishmen who quickly established their pattern of civilization. These frontiersmen built homes, churches, and set up schools, the latter often conducted by Presbyterian clergymen, with the purpose of preparing youth for the gospel ministry. From such schools, which the Scotch-Irish founded in the Augusta-Rockbridge area, evolved the Augusta-Academy, the Liberty Hall Academy, and their successors, ultimately Washington and Lee University.

According to Edward Graham, younger brother of the Reverend William Graham, and a man well-acquainted with local history and traditions, the school eventually called Liberty Hall Academy "commenced under Robert Alexander." Alexander was one of three brothers who emigrated from Ireland in 1737, two of whom removed to "New Virginia" in 1746. Robert Alexander became a citizen of some consequence on the Virginia frontier, and taught a school comprising his own and his neighbors' children. Only scattered evidence concerning this "germ" of early frontier education has been preserved: we know the names of but few of Robert Alexander's pupils.

According to incomplete historical evidence, supplemented by local traditions, the Robert Alexander school, which was in operation "as early as 1749" was located some two and a half miles southwest of Greenville, Virginia, where it remained for an undetermined number of years. Robert Alexander's health failed about 1760, and it is likely that he turned over his school to other hands. In the year 1753, the Reverend John Brown, a graduate of Princeton, class of 1749, arrived to assume charge of the New Providence Church, then situated near Robert Alexander's home. It appears that, although other teachers performed the instruction in the Augusta school following Robert Alexander, the Reverend Mr. Brown early interested himself in it, became its overseer or supervisor, and at times taught the school himself.

At some unknown date, but probably in the 1760's, the site of the school was removed to "Mount Pleasant," near the village of Fairfield, a few miles from the new location of New Providence Church, and near the residence of that church's pastor, the Reverend Mr. Brown. Here the school emerges in clearer focus. About 1774 a recent Princeton graduate, William Graham, was persuaded to take charge. Shortly afterward, Graham was licensed as a Presbyterian minister, and in addition to his school duties, became pastor of the Timber Ridge Presbyterian church.

TO THE CLASS OF 1949:

The graduates of the Bicentennial Year go forth, with our blessing and our affectionate concern, into their unpredictable future. That future may be hazardous or it may be exciting with strange promise; we pray that it will be richly rewarding for every honest effort, every worthy motive.

In this commemorative session, the seniors will be mindful of the great fellowship they join. For two hundred years, men of your heritage have entered into life's activity, some to make history in the large, some to accept the unrecognized detail of duty. Almost without exception, they have never shirked their task, have never been afraid of it.

If your future seems remote from the simpler social order to which many of your older brothers went, you will recall that the principles by which you master that future are the ones they knew: the power to explore knowledge, the inspiration from noble culture, the strength to live with honor, the grace of sympathy.

These things, we hope, are yours by reason of your being Washington and Lee men.

John Robinson, a native of Ireland and a revolutionary soldier under General Washington later became a citizen of Lexington. He made one of the three large bequests to this institution that carried it through the first seventy-five years of the nineteenth century. This shaft erected to his memory in 1855 was restored in 1939. Also one of the academic buildings bears his name.

Cyrus Hall McCormack was a native of Rockbridge county and a devoted friend and trustee of Washington and Lee University. During the difficult post-war years, he befriended many of his old friends and neighbors. The McCormack family through the years have given sizable sums to this institution and this statue stands in memory of Cyrus Hall McCormack. In addition the main library building bears his name.

II. WILLIAM GRAHAM AT THE HELM, 1776-1796

With the coming of the Reverend William Graham to assume direction of the school at Mount Pleasant, the institution took on a more permanent character than formerly. This was also brought about by the decision of the Hanover Presbytery to establish a permanent school west of the Blue Ridge. Graham came to Virginia, indeed, at the invitation of the Presbytery; after preliminary arrangements, 1774-1776, it was decided that he should have permanent charge, and that the school should be established at Timber Ridge. There public-spirited citizens such as Samuel Houston and Alexander Stuart donated lands for the academy, buildings were erected, and attuned to the patriotism of the times, the Trustees (local men chosen by Presbytery) in 1776 changed the name of the school from the Augusta Academy to Liberty Hall Academy.

Because of troubled times at the opening of the American Revolution, the development of the academy was retarded. In 1781, the Rector, William Graham, aroused the countryside and raised a body of militia, which he led to Rockfish Gap, there to wait the British under Colonel Tarleton. Liberty Hall students also participated in the battle of Guilford Court House. After the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown in 1781, the Rector and Trustees turned to the task of resuscitating their academy, which had been removed to the North River in 1780, securing in 1782 a charter from the new state of Virginia. Although this document said no word of creed or doctrine, the self-perpetuating Board of Trustees created by it was composed largely of local Presbyterians.

During the 1780's and 1790's the Rector, aided by tutors, offered instruction in Liberty Hall. Mr. Graham attempted to found a miniature replica of Princeton at his academy; for twenty-two years he labored to establish the struggling institution on a sound financial and academic basis. Presbytery, the Legislature of Virginia, and the public were repeatedly appealed to for contributions to the school; and some well-known Virginians, including Thomas Jefferson, were among the donors. Mr. Graham also had to contend with disciplinary problems common to academies and colleges in the era. In this he was often aided by members of the Board of Trustees who lived in the vicinity. About 1796 Mr. Graham decided to remove to the Ohio, there to seek his fortune. He resigned in 1796, but already events were in motion of great importance to Liberty Hall. The institution was deeply indebted to the Reverend Mr. Graham for his tireless efforts, and it is not too much to speak of him as the de facto founder of the academy.

Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary leadership fraternity, was founded on this campus, December 3, 1914. Today OAK occupies a place of significant leadership and influence in American colleges and universites, and its high ideals and distinguished members constantly contribute to the upbuilding of those moral and spiritual values in which every college and university believes itself rich.

The five cardinal points upon which OAK members are selected are scholarship, athletics, religious and social life, University publications, and Speech music and dramatic arts. OAK recognizes the importance of campus citizenship as the training ground for good citizenship in post-college days. It firmly believes that upon good citizenship will depend the future welfare of the nation.

GEORGE JUNKIN

III. ACADEMY INTO COLLEGE, 1796-1865

Following a short interregnum, the Reverend George A. Baxter, a recent alumnus, was chosen Rector. During his long regime of three decades, the institution became Washington Academy in 1798 (after an abortive attempt by the state of Virginia to take over the school), and in 1813 received a formal recharter as Washington College. Early in the century the school was removed to its present site, where several modest buildings were erected. On the whole Dr. Baxter's tenure was tranquil, broken only by disciplinary troubles, and towards its close by public criticism of alleged lethargic management.

Meanwhile, after careful investigation, George Washington had endowed the upcountry Academy with a handsome gift of fifty shares of James River Canal stock, from which the school realized distinction and much-needed income. In 1802, the Virginia Society of the Cincinnati conditionally conferred upon the Academy its funds, which after many vicissitudes, were transferred to the College in 1848. Another benefactor was John Robinson, who willed his entire estate to Washington College in 1826.

The brief presidencies of Dr. Louis Marshall and Henry Vethake need not detain us. Of more importance was the epoch of the Reverend Dr. Henry Ruffner, who guided the school (1836-48), as an orthodox American college. Dr. Ruffner, a keen critic of contemporary Virginia, theologian and novelist, faced unsuccessfully such problems as the appearance of the rival Virginia Military Institute and a barrage of newspaper attacks in the forties. Dr. George Junkin, his successor (1848-61), directed the College along the same unspectacular lines until he was jolted out by the guns of Fort Sumter. A Pennsylvanian and determined Unionist, Dr. Junkin combated secession sentiment among students until he fled northward in April, 1861.

In emulation of their revolutionary ancestors, the lads of Washington College organized a unit known as the Liberty Hall Volunteers, which first drilled under Professor A. L. Nelson, and under Professor James J. White, their Captain, marched away to the wars in June, 1861. This college company served throughout the war, seeing action in the major battles of the Virginia sector. Alumni of the College participated in large numbers elsewhere, and many gave their lives for the lost cause. While its sons passed through the ordeal of fire, the College carried on as best it could, offering instruction to under-age youths and those not in military service.

After years of struggling along with practically no supervision or aid, the Troubs were fortunate enough this year to obtain Mr. Jack Lanich, hard-working perfectionist, as faculty director. New lighting equipment has also been added which has helped the hard-pressed technicians a great deal.

hard-pressed technicians a great deal. The Tro-badours have given two very polished and professional productions this year: "Dark of the Moon" and "Amphitryon 38." Naerly everyone within this organization has given freely of his "me to make the Troubs a success. Actors and actresses such as Austin Hunt. Russ Thomes, Don Van Dall, Joe Moffatt, Roger Mudd. Dan Albin, Jack Martin, Callie Smith, Mary Martin, and Mudd, Uth Albin, Jack Martin, Calile amirn, mary martin, end Muriel Chaffer are all veterans and always can be counted upon for outstanding performances, while such newcomers as Howard Steel, Ellict Eaves, Jack Willcoxon, Chuck Baird, Margaret Wilson, Joyce Agnor, Bill Brown, Harry Brimm, Louise Foster, and Pras Browning all have displayed a great deal of talent and can be counted upon heavily in the future.

Several of the campus' outstanding actors furned to other phases of dramatic work this year. "Ev" Easter, who created the unforgettable role of Bensinger on last year's "Front Page" this year was assistant director of "Dark of the Moon" while Red Wild, director of the same play, and star of last season's, "Drink Deep" has become Make-up Supervisor.

Too much credit cannot be given to the stage crew and technicians. Such capable individuals as Enire Clarke, Jim Fenhagen, Charlie Lemon, and Bili Mills were always on hand for the hardest icbs in the theater, and it is partly through their efforts that the plays this year were of such high quality.

Probably in other play presented by the Troubad wis, raused as much tax is able comment among those who saw it as "Dark Of The Moon". An experimental play, it teatured Mary Martin and Din Van Dail, treshman tron: Oliahoma in the leading role. Both Mrs Martin and Mr Van Dall turned in excellent performances, and a strong supporting cast gave depth to the presentation. Callie Smith Joe Moffatt, Autin Hunt and Reger Mudd gave vivid potrayals of mountain peigle us they really are.

Charlie Lemon displayed his technical ability with wonderful lighting effect, which helped tremendously to create the necessary, mood, and undoubtedly helped make this play the best of recent years.

The Doremus Gymnasium is a memorial to the late Robert Parker Doremus of New York and was erected by his widow, Jessie R. Doremus. The active interest of the Doremuses in this institution occurred because Robert Parker Doremus was so impressed with the courtesy and gentlemanly conduct of Washington and Lee students.

The Footbridge connects the Doremus Gymnasium and the main campus with the Wilson Memorial Field and the other athletic fields and the tennis courts. It is said to be the longest concrete bridge used exclusively as a footbridge, in the world.

IV. THE GREAT AGE: R. E. LEE AT LEXINGTON

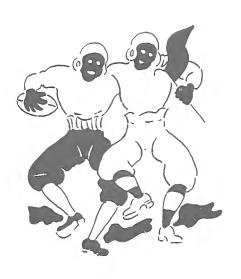

After the surrender at Appomattox, the Trustees met in order to lay plans for the future. Of importance was the election of a President, and in this matter the Trustees took an inspired action: they tendered the office to General R. E. Lee. The Rector, Judge Brockenbrough, was dispatched to interview General Lee, with the result that, despite some modest misgivings, the Southern hero accepted the post at Washington College. The General arrived in Lexington in the fall of 1865, took the oath of office in an unpretentious ceremony, and entered upon his duties.

At once what had been an obscure, small college with strong sectarian leanings, became well-known throughout the nation and indeed beyond. Ex-Confederate soldiers and parents of boys of college age began to inquire about "General Lee's College," and the enrollment took a sharp turn upwards, reaching 411 in 1867—an unheard of number. With students came a much enlarged faculty, men carefully chosen by General Lee. On the whole, it was a distinguished group, including such able men as William Preston Johnston, Richard S. McCulloch, and Edward S. Joynes. Friends and admirers of General Lee responded to appeals for financial assistance to the poverty-stricken yet booming Southern college. Especially did General Lee's program of an expanded, practical curriculum necessitate larger income; and such men as Cyrus McCormick of Chicago, W. W. Corcoran of Washington, and George Peabody, the eminent philanthropist, sent in sorely-needed contributions.

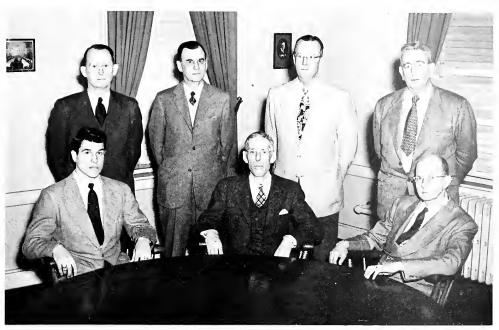

In line with his wise policy of acquiescence in the outcome of the war, General Lee, with the collaboration of the faculty, prepared several reports to the Trustees, which embodied his theory of education. He wished Southerners to prepare themselves to take part in the rebuilding of the ruined South, and to this end he introduced courses in engineering, applied sciences, and mathematics; arranged for the addition to Washington College of Judge Brockenbrough's Lexington Law School in 1866; and at the close of his presidency outlined a plan of scholarships by which young men, intending to become professional journalists, might come to Washington College. These incipient journalists were to work in the plant of the Lexington Gazette for a stipulated number of hours a day, while taking the regular courses at the College. Thus General Lee envisioned a university curriculum for Washington College, a program unfortunately interrupted and slowed down by the death of the eminent soldier-educator in October, 1870.

FOOTBALL, 1948

With a cry of "this is the year" on the lips of every W&L rooter, Coaches Art "Pappy" Lewis, Carl Wise, and Johnny Jaffurs put forty-five football hopefuls through the usual pre-season grind, and when the season opened on September 25th, the general feeling was that the 1948 Big Blue would definitely improve on the five and five record chalked up by the '47 eleven, despite an extra-heavy schedule including games with Pennsylvania, Georgia Tech, and the University of Virginia.

Well, when the tally was added up on November 25th, the book showed four wins against six losses; not a bad season, and, as usual, the scores did not tell the story. It all boiled down to "the breaks of the game."

Pushing over a tally in the final minutes of play, Furman's Purple Hurricane nosed out a 10-7 victory over the Generals on September 25 at Wilson Field, much to the dismay of 2500 opening day fans. It was evident from the start that the visitors would be no pushover. They advanced the pigskin to the Washington and Lee 20-yard line. Three trys at the General forward wall netted only two yards, but on fourth down Furman end, Johnny Little toed the ball through the uprights for a field goal and the Hurricane held a 3-0 lead.

Aroused by this unexpected event, the Big Blue began to roll. Bell took the kick-off back to the General forty-two, Jim Stark carried for nine yards into Furman territory.

Harrington hit for six. Quarterback Mike Boyda then faded back and hit Bell with an aerial good for twenty yards. Once again W & L took to the air with a Boyda to Lukens pass and a first down on the Furman one yard line, and two plays later, Charlie Harrington knifed his way through tackle for the lone Blue marker. Micheals converted and the score was W & L 7, Furman 3.

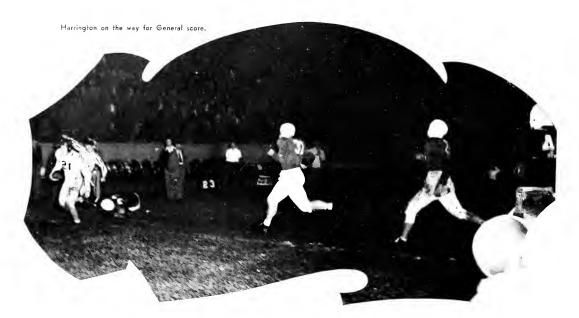

With but four minutes remaining the playoff came when Furman recovered a fumble on the General IO yard stripe. Two plays later the Hurricane swept over for the game-winning TD with George Pruitt carrying the mail.

Just a little fond affection!

W&L . . . 13; OHIO . . : 0

Smarting under the Furman defeat the previous Saturday, the Generals journeyed to Roanoke, October 2, and scored a 13-0 win over the University of Ohio. Still a little slow in getting under way, it wasn't until the second half that the Lewismen were able to push across the two game winning touchdowns. Up 'til that time the game had been played on fairly even terms.

Charlie Harrington, known familiarly to W&L fans as the "Plainsman", got the Big Blue on the road early in the third period with a sensational 56-yard punt return. He finally came to rest on the Ohio three, and after one try at the line netted no gain, Quarterback Ray Leister swept around end for the score. The try for extra point was wide.

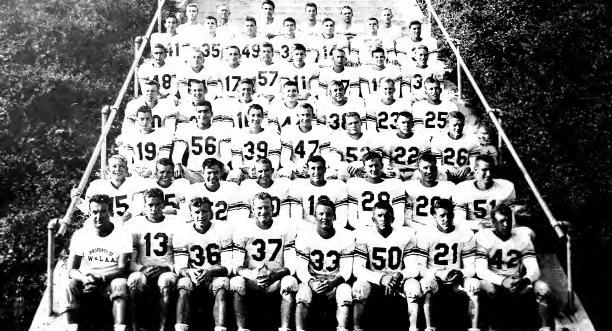

In the fourth stanza, Harrington returned a punt to the Ohio forty. On fourth down, Mike Boyda uncorked an aerial to end Jim Carpenter on the thirty. The Generals were forced to kick on the following fourth down, but were given a first down when the Ohioans were penalized for having twelve men on the field. Stark and Harrington carried the ball to the sixteen and two plays later Harrington skirted the Buckeye flank for the second General tally. This time Micheal's kick was good. Two more W&L invasions were halted just short of scores by interceptions. The Bobcats never did threaten seriously thanks to the punting of Boyda, who kept the Ohio eleven deep in their own territory most of the evening.

Lexington underwent an invasion on October 15 as the Wahoos of the University of Virginia spoiled the annual Homecoming of Washington and Lee. Johnny Papit and company ran roughshod over the Generals and the Wilson Field gathering was forced to witness a 41-6 defeat at the hands of the ancient rivals from across the mountain.

On the third play from scrimmage, the speedy Papit raced 60 yards through the General eleven for the first of seven Cavalier markers. Approximately four minutes later history repeated itself as Papit once again hit pay dirt untouched, this time from 42 yards out. The Cavaliers tallied twice more in the first half, making the score 27-0 at intermission.

In the fourth period, the Wahoo army began to march once again, and pushed over three more scores before the final gun. Papit made a general nuisance of himself by streaking 63 yards for his third touchdown of the afternoon.

W&L saved a shutout when the Virginia pass defense let up a little bit. Jim Stark made a sensational catch of a Leister pass on the Wahoo fifteen. Boyda then tossed to Harrington on the one and on the next play Charlie bowled over for the lone General tally.

W&L . . . . . . 0 GEORGIA TECH . . 27

Playing before a crowd of 25,000 at Grant Field in Atlanta, Georgia, the Generals proved no match for the classy Engineers of Georgia Tech, and bowed to the tune of 27-0. Mixing a hard running attack with Quarterback Jim Southard's passes, the Yellow Jackets tallied three times in the short space of six minutes. The fourth Tech score came on an intercepted areial.

The Generals did not leave the Peach State without the praises of the entire crowd however. Not being able to make any headway on the ground, W&L took to the air via the arm of Mike Boyda, and when the dust had cleared from the field, the erstwhile quarterback had thrown thirty-four passes and had completed seventeen. As usual, Jim Lukens was the favorite receiver, taking eight in all, and five in a row for 43 yards in the only scoring threat the Blue had.

Both teams rolled up sixteen first downs during the course of the afternoon, but the Engineers were the only ones to take advantage of the advances. The game marked the first time in seventeen starts that the Generals had been held scoreless.

W & L . . . . 7 W. VIRGINIA 14

Malack bowls over for Mountaineer tally.

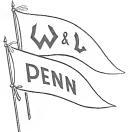

The "dust bowl" of Charleston, West Virginia was the scene of much good football on the afternoon of October 22, but the Mountaineers from Morgantown came out on the long end of a 14-7 score. Washington and Lee played its best game of the season to date, but it was not quite enough. The contest was in doubt up to the final whistle, as the Generals threatened time and again only to have their drives halted by pass interceptions and the powerful Mountaineer line.

West Virginia capitalized on a Blue fumble to register the first six pointer. Seven plays after recovering the loose ball, Vic Bonfili plowed over from four yards out. The extra point was good and the score was 7-0.

Two minutes before the first quarter ended, the Generals knotted the count when Brian Bell, speedy W&L halfback made a sensational 73-yard touchdown run through the entire West Virginia team. Micheals' kick was good.

All scoring ended a few minutes later when the Mountaineers made a sustained drive of 65 yards for a TD, Malak scoring on a plunge from the three.

The second half was marked by several General threats, but the elert West Virginians threw up a pass defense which stopped all attempts to cross their goal line.

Brotherly love was nowhere in sight on the afternoon of October 29 in the fair city of Philadelphia. Instead, the Liberty Bell was tolling the defeat of Washington and Lee at the hands of the University of Pennsylvania, 40-7. Coach George Munger of the Quakers decided to combat the vaunted General games with one of his own, and did so quite effectively. Passes accounted for four of the Penn scores and set up a fifth.

The first period, to the amazement of 50,000 fans who crowded Franklin Field, was close. Both teams battled up and down the field on even terms. But thereafter, the Virginians never had a chance and Penn tallied twice in each of the last three periods.

The only General score came late in the last stanza. Ray Leister took over the reins and passed the Big Blue to the Penn ten, using Lukens and Stark as his receivers. Fullback Walt Micheals then bulled his way across and converted. By defeating W&L, the Quakers racked up their 500th victory.

W & L . . 21 DAVIDSON 20

Strombaugh hit hard in Furman game.

Taking great delight in seeing someone elses Homecoming spoiled, Washington and Lee edged out a win over the Davidson Wildcats at Davidson on November 12, 21-20. The margin of victory was provided by tackle Harry Gowans, who broke through the Cat line and blocked an attempted extra point.

W&L scored first on a pass from Boyda to Harrington from 14 yards out. Micheals made the first of three perfect conversions and the Big Blue had a 7-0 lead. Davidson retaliated almost immediately when Auburn Lambeth, the Cat field general, found Williams clear in the end zone. Here, Gowans made a hero of himself.

In the second quarter, Brian Bell, Speedy General halfback, took a hand-off from Boyda and raced some 65 yards to the Davidson five when he was hauled down from behind. Boyda then passed to Jim Lukens for the second W&L sixpointer, and Micheals again made good with the extra point.

Davidson took the kickoff and marched steadily down the gridiron, scoring just before the half ended on another pass from Lambeth to Williams.

Charlie Holt set up the final General tally in the third period with a beautiful run to the Davidson sixteen. Three plays later, Bell went over and Micheals converted to end the W&L scoring. The Cats drove 76 yards for their last marker behind the pitching of Lambeth. Cliff Turner bucked over from the three, Mapes converted.

After battling for four straight weeks against opposition that would have been tough for any team, the Generals returned to their native soil and found victory awaiting them there. The victim was VPI, the place was the Municipal Stadium in Lynchburg, and the score was 14-7.

As far as Washington and Lee was concerned, good things came in small packages, in this case a very short space of time. Both General scores came as the clock was about to stop.

In the second period, with but two minutes remaining, Ray Leister plunged across from the one-yard line for the first Blue marker. Then, with only seconds left before the final gun, Brian Bell fought his way through the Gobbler forward wall to give the Generals the margin of victory. Both of Walt Micheals' conversions were good.

VPI was the first to score, however, accomplishing said feat early in the second period. Ralph Beard and Jim Ratliff carried the ball from the General forty-five to the two. From there, Neel went over for the score and Orr converted.

W&L . . . . . . 21 DELAWARE . . . . . 14

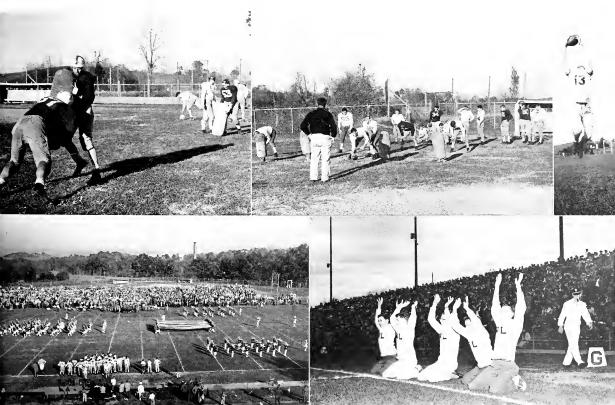

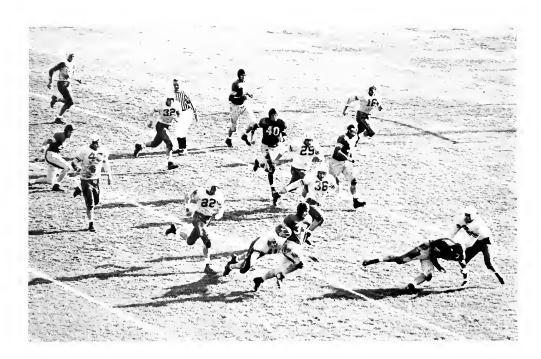

Traveling once again to Yankee land, Washington and Lee found a spirited rival in the University of Delaware, but behind the fine play of Brian Bell and Mike Boyda, scored a 21-14 victory. Bell accounting for all three General touchdowns in playing the most brilliant game of his college career. Boyda's arm was also one of the deciding factors in the win, as he passed for two of the TD's.

The visitors got off to a 14-0 lead in the first period with two quick scores, and added another in the second stanza to hold a 21-7 margin at halftime. Bell scored first on an eight-yard smash off tackle, and hit paydirt a few moments later on a pass from 18 yards out. The third General TD came in the second period on a 27-yard pass to Bell, who was all alone in the end zone.

Two of the Blue Hen's tallies came on sustained drives of 85 and 55 yards, while Billy Cole provided the third Delaware score with a 76-yard dash through the entire General squad.

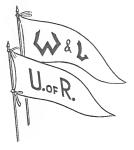

In the first game of a new Thanksgiving Day series between W&L and the University of Richmond, 8000 state capitol fans saw the Spiders capitalize on their educated toes to eke out a 14-12 win in the season's finale for both clubs.

The Generals scored in the first period when Bell made a leaping catch of a Boyda pass in the end zone. The try for extra point was wide. Richmond went ahead by a single point in the second stanza when Charlie Suttenfield ran 44 yards for six points and Thompson converted. W&L struck back immeditately with a 69 yard drive culminating in Bell's second touchdown from the one yard line. Micheals again failed to split the uprights. As the final quarter began, Richmond drove for the game-winning score, "Sugar" Ray Ralston going over from the one.

BASKETBALL

Under the guiding reins of Coach Bob Spessard the General's basketball team rang up a record of 10 wins against 12 losses, but the high spots of the season were the two spectacular triumphs over the University of Virginia. Coach Spessard did a creditable job in producing a team with a much improved record and one that was battling for a tournament spct up to the final weeks of the season. Sweet victory was in the air for the Generals when they treked over to Charlottesville to meet their arch-rivals. Before the usually antagonistic crowd the boys put on perhaps their finest exhibition of basketball, dropping the surprised Cavaliers, 75-66. When the Wahoos made a return visit later in the season, once again the Blue Comets were on their toes and scored an 84-81 victory. This was the most exciting game of the campaign with the outcome in doubt until the final horn sounded.

Jay Handlin, freshman sensation, climaxed a terrific year by being named to the All-State five. Handlin threw in 370 points for an average of 16.8 points per game. Bob Goldsmith and Captain Fred Vinson deserve credit for their good work during the year. Goldsmith made the All-State second team and scored 332 points during the year. Vinson was the team's steading influence when the action got hectic. Chris Compton was the most improved ball player on the team and gave the Generals superior backboard play throughout the season. Joe Auer was the other starter most of the year and flashed brilliance at times with his long shots and southpaw one handers. Steve Ulaki and George Pierson also saw a good bit of action, and Pierson's deadly set shot came in handy on occasions.

WRESTLING

For the second consecutive year, Washington and Lee's wrestling team proved their superiority over Southern Conference foes in both tournament and dual meet competition. Intersectionally the General Grapplers annexed the mythical championship of the South by a convincing win over the Southeastern champs, Alabama Polytech, and lost only to Lehigh, Eastern Mat rulers.

They won the tournament decisively, compiling 33 points to their nearest opponents 22. The first plaque to be awarded in the Conference for the best dual meet wrestling record went to the Big Blue Mat men by virtue of their six win, no loss record in the loop.

Under the pressure of providing local fans and alumni with a successful Bicentennial sports feature, the champions of the victorious 1948 team and their able associates took the mats against the largest array of mat talent in tournament history and emerged with place winners in every weight division including three individual title holders.

Joe Sconce, 136 pounds, and Ken Finley, 145 pounds, were successful in the defense of their titles, the latter finishing up his second year without a single defeat, while Ken Lindell, only senior on the squad, graduated from the 165 to the 175 championship. Irish Ted Lonergan was dethroned

BASEBALL

Opening the season with six victories in a row W&L's Baseball Generals turned in a successful 1948 schedule with 12 wins against 9 losses. Four of the Blue's defeats were suffered at the hands of such diamond greats as Maryland, West Virginia, and two to Georgetown.

After Johnny Ligon turned in a beautiful pitching performance to down Ohio Wesleyan 9-4, the General's took off on a spring vacation road trip to whip Davidson twice, Clemson once, and Furman twice in neat succession. W&L returned and dropped a hard fought contest to West Virginia 13-9, but bounced back in the next game to swamp Roanoke College 15-3. Nelson Newcomb pitched a tight game for the Generals holding the Maroons well under control all the way. Ligon lost his first game of the year in a low hitting 3-1 contest to the Wahoo's, but the Generals disposed of VPI 7-2 the next day behind the pitching of Lacy Putney.

William and Mary's power at the plate proved to be too much for the Blue's as they slugged their way to a 10-8 victory over the Generals. Following this game, W&L went into a slump and dropped four games in a row to Roanoke, George Washington, Georgetown, and Davidson. But, benind the stellar hurling of Ligon the Generals copted an 8-2 victory over Richmond to put them on the right side of the score sheet for the first time in two weeks. Mike Boyda failed to receive any hitting support in his pitching assignment against Maryland, and W&L dropped a heartbreaker to the Terps 11-5. Ligon again brought the Generals back on top as he wound up the year with two masterful exhibitions of hurling against VPI and Richmond. Johnny whipped the Techmen 4-3 and the Spiders 7-6 in the season's finale.

Curve-balling Nelson Newcomb led the hurler's on the percentage basis with a season's record of 2 wins in as many starts. Putney was second with a slate of 3 victories and 1 lost followed by Ligon with 5 and 2. Throughout the year the Generals held their own in the hitting department thanks to the wood swinging efforts of Captain Fred Vinson with .326, Charlie Agnor with .329, Willis Woods with .341, and Brian Bell, who led the sluggers with a season's average of .411. Bell also headed the squad in home runs with six round-trippers.

JIM ROBERTS, pole vault

Sparked by Freshman stars Pete White, hurdler, and Wally "the arm" Oref, and led by allaround Captain Jim Lukens, the General thin clads performed courageously if not too successfully in five dual meets and three sectional meets in 1948. The team was winner over Randolph-Macon, lost by a scant three points to West Virginia, but the University of Richmond, Davidson College and Virginia Tech outpointed the Big Blue spike men by wider margins.

White was a double winner in most dual meets; Bill Capers, quarter-miler, placed in the Big 6 meet; Wally Oref was third best in the conference with the javelin, while Bill Metzel and White set high jump and hurdle records at the Virginia AAU meet.

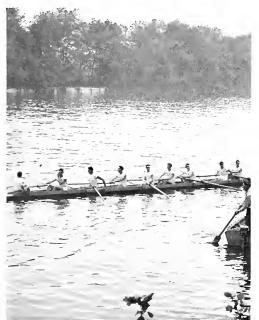

SUNDERLAND, dash

CREW

Gentlemen eight of the James.

The students making up the Varsity and Junior Varsity eights should along with their coaches Wink Glasgow and Fred Rowe be commended for their enthusiastic spirit in spite of varying amounts of support. The height of last season's three and one record came with the defeat of the Rollins eight who had emerged victor from all other races with General boatment. Also W&L turned in a record time of 5.09 for the James River course. Next season with the spirit displayed thus far we expect the crew to receive full recognition as a sport here.

RECORD

Varsity

W and L over A. I. C. by four feet. W and L over Rollins by a length. W and I. lost to Marietta by one length (Henley course).

Junior Varsity

W and L lost to George Washington High by one length. W and L lost to Marietta J. V. by one length (Henley course).

Inter Club

Albert Sydney over Harry Lee by one-half length.

LACROSSE

The Generals opened their 1948 schedule by defeating favored Yale 7 to 3 in the best performance by the Blue in the 1948 season. After dropping their next two contests to Virginia and Duke, W & L bounced back to edge the Wahoos in their second meeting, 10 to 9. The Blue suffered its worst defeat at the hands of Mount Washington, then in turn it dropped Loyola and William and Mary Extension. In the final game the Maryland downed the Generals 10 to 7. The over all season's record was four wins and four losses.

Bratches "heading" goalward.

Washington and Lee's 1948 Soccer team captured the Virginia State Soccer title for the second straight year, and although their seasonal record of five wins and five losses does not denote an exceptional season, the Soccer men made a good showing whenever they stepped on the field.

This year's edition of the W&L Soccer team was one which had the material, but not the depth. It had the fight and will to win but lacked the polish of some of its out of state opponents. With experienced letter men such as Captain Trundle, Parkinson, Muhlenberg, Stickle, and Croyder returning, along with new comers Bratches, and freshman Gillespie and Ginney, the team looks forward to a successful season in 1949.

TENNIS

The General net men experienced a very successful season, copping eight out of eleven matches. Playing the entire season without the services of their famous coach, Fred Perry, who was on tour at the time, the record of the tennis team seems even more enviable. The Generals won their first five starts before bowing to the Country-Club of Virginia six, 0-9. Two more matches were lost during the season, most to the University of Virginia.

The 1949 racket men will be minus the services of Don Moxham and Bill Bernard, but prospects are still bright for another successful schedule.

Experiencing their best reason since the war, the gold team under the guidance of Coach Cy Twombly, rang up an envisible record of nine wins against two losses with one match ending in a draw. In the annual Southern Conference tournament held at Pinehurst, North Carolina the divet men grabbed fifth place. The General links men will field another strong squad.

SWIMMING

Swimmers take your marks!

Full credit for the astounding dual meet record over the past two years must go to Coach Cy Tyombly, for without his efforts their would be no swimming on the Varsity level. Not only has he kept the sport alive at Washington and Lee, but also he has developed a handful of inexperienced candidates into a well-balanced, seasoned team which swept through its last twelve dual meets with but one lost.

Mythical state championship honors and a goal mine of tuture material made the "baby" Generals of 1948 one of the more potent machines in W&L's football history. Bob Spessard, mentor of the frosh team, did a masterful job of blending a host of individual stars into a coordinated team which proved in its season's finale against V. P. I. that it was not wholly dependent on any one individual for its successes.

Their 36-0 shutout of the hapless Davidson kittens was the most decisive win in General wrestling history. Howie Davis, honorary Brigader captain, was top scorer with 39 points in nine watches, but Sam Latham, Okie product, pressed close with 37 points. Other numeral winners were Paul Weill, John Doherty, Bob Crocker, Charles Williams, Bob Griffith, Morgan Lear, George Matchneer, and Jim Kidd. John Jaffurs, coach, successfully maneuvered his team against the following oponents:

V. RECLINE AND RECOVERY, 1870-1900

The momentum engendered by General R. E. Lee was sufficient to carry the institution well into the seventies, and the Trustees, upon the recommendation of General G. W. Custis Lee, son and successor of General R. E. Lee, partially implemented the latter's university program. The name of the school was changed in 1871 to Washington and Lee University, and advanced degrees, including the M.A. and Ph.D. were offered. But through the operation of a number of causes a steady decline set in at the University. Among the factors were the coming of a severe depression, 1873-1880, the recovery of Southern universities and the founding of others, the broadened activity of the University of Virginia, and the lack of leadership at Washington and Lee.

Thus gradually able teachers drifted away from Lexington, and the numbers of students fell off until in 1881 fewer than a hundred were enrolled. Another disappointment was the loss of the McCormick Observatory to the University of Virginia, although the realization of the handsome Peabody fund did something to offset it. Some recovery was noted in the late eighties. High standards were preserved in academic performances, while students profited much in intimate town-gown relationships, in Literary Societies, and in publication of their literary magazine, the Southern Collegian. Interest in intercollegiate baseball developed in the mid-Victorian age, when matches with the University of Virginia or the Virginia Military Institute were social events. Football came into prominence in the nineties. Social fraternities made their mark on campus in the post-Civil War years, and dancing came to be countenanced.

General Custis Lee, suffering from ill-health throughout his twenty-seven years as President, and failing to exert vigorous leadership, resigned in 1897. The University had encountered the blows of the Panic of 1893 and ensuing years of depression. The Trustees reached into the world of politics for General Custis Lee's successor, when they appointed William Lyne Wilson. Although a politician by profession, President Wilson was by nature a scholar of breadth and vision. He interested himself in the introduction of courses in economics and allied fields, and was responsible for bringing to Lexington the brilliant young H. Parker Willis, a trained economist and productive scholar. Dr. Willis also added courses in Political Science, and thus were laid the foundations of what later became the School of Commerce.

Jancy Dress Ball is as much a part of the Washington and Lee tradition as the columns. It has a long and fascinating history. The first "Bal Masque" was given by Miss Annie Jo White, Washington and Lee librarian for many years, for a select group of students, professors and VMI first classmen on February 12, 1907.

Since 1909 the Fancy Dress Ball has become a gala annual event and the most widely known and publicized college dance in the South. Through the years themes have ranged from "Carnival in Venice" and "Arabian Nights" to the George Washington Birthday Ball. In the past few years a part of the Ball has been broadcast on a nationwide radio hookup.

FRANCIS PENDLETON GAINES

VI. THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

William L. Wilson died in 1900 after three fruitful yet discouraging years. Henry St. George Tucker, son of the renowned John Randolph Tucker, and then Dean of the Law School, acted as President during 1900-1901. Mr. Tucker, who had devoted attention to the erection of the Tucker Hall, a Law building, turned zealously to the raising of the Wilson Memorial Fund, with which to endow a chair of Economics. After encountering some difficulty, the Trustees selected Dr. George H. Denny, Professor of Latin, as acting President in 1901, and President the next year.

Dr. Denny brought to his post youth, energy, and untiring zest for work. The youthful President devoted his talents to increasing the enrollment, which more than trebled in a decade, and to efficient financial management. Nor did President Denny neglect the faculty, to which he added a number of able, well-trained scholars. Dr. Denny's success and popularity won for him a call elsewhere in 1911.

The Trustees then appointed to the Presidency Dr. Henry Louis Smith, President of Davidson College, an eloquent orator and dynamic personality. The new executive maintained the high standard of the faculty, reduced for a time the size of the student body, built the Doremus Gymnasium, and the Graham Dormitory, and, after World War I, launched a million dollar financial drive. Dr. Smith sought to develop an engineering school; and in the 1920's a Department of Journalism was established. He also planned to remodel and enlarge the Lee Memorial Chapel. World War I profoundly affected the University, which participated in the national effort through the S. A. T. C.; a Washington Lee overseas Ambulance Unit; and through the war services of the alumni. At the end of the war the enrollment of Washington and Lee again increased, taking on a new cosmopolitanism which has since been maintained.

Dr. Smith retired in 1929. The Trustees tendered the presidency of Washington and Lee to Dr. Francis P. Gaines, President of Wake Forest College. Dr. Gaines seemed admirably equipped for his task. Unfortunately, the depression decade of the thirties was in general a desperate period in the academic world. A wise program of rebuilding and renovation of the buildings was undertaken, however, which while leaving the beautiful exterior of the campus intact, entirely rebuilt the Washington Hall group, the Library, the dormitories, Tucker Hall, and the Student Union. World War II followed hard on the heels of the depression; thousands of alumni, students, and faculty served in the war effort. The return of peace brought a flood of students, a large percentage of them veterans, to the campus. The University in the year 1949 looks forward to the future with confidence, tempered by the uncertainties of national and international developments.

WASHINGTON

Four times a year the campus looses the drab aspect of a men's school and puts or the light and carefree appearance of a coeducational institution. Every student looks forward to each dance weekend as a break in the drudgery of his studies, as a chance to let go and enjoy himself. The CALYX presents a brief review of the past dance year in hopes that these pleasant days may be remembered for the happy moments that they provided.

Each year the student body takes time off to re-live some great moment in history—The opening of Monte Carlo. The exotic carnival in Rio. The splendor of the court of Charles II. This year, Philadelphia in 1797 for the birthday of the first President of the United States—George Washington.

A touch of a past century

The largest crowd to attend a dance all year turned out to toast George Washington at his birthday ball of 1797. Doremus Gymnasium was transformed into a replica of Rickett's Amphitheater in Philadelphia. John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton and many other notables of the times were there. George and Martha Washington portrayed by Matt Paxton and Miss Frances Marr of Lexington, Virginia entered the hall at the climax of the colorful procession of French, British, and American guests. Charlie Barnet played as the characters of American history came to life and danced in honor of their President.

Class President Bruce Parkinson led the figure at the Junior Prom on Saturday right to complete the successful two day set.

Music for Spring Dances 1948 was provided by Johnny Archer and his orchestra. The scene of the Cotillion Club Formal on Friday was the lawn of a Southern mansion. The figure was led by set President Paul Murphy and Miss Donna Davis of Little Rock, Arkansas. On Saturday, students and their young ladies relaxed at the informal Sigma Nu dance.

The music of Jimmy Livingston and his orchestra, the carefree and gaiety of the pre-vacation period, the thrill of a boat race on the James, farewell parties and toasts to the future—all these things and many more make Finals one of the better dance sets of the year.

Finals President Tom Watkins led the Finals

on his arm. Sharing the limelight with Senior Class President Lou Shroyer was Miss Sally Ayers of Ames, Iowa.

After the Senior figure had painted its colorful study in black and white a one hour intermission permitted a change from formal finery to informal comfort. At the end of the dance the crowd gathered for their annual signing of "College Friendships" which has become a part of the W & L tradition.

- Opening Dances' president announces in local journalistic sheet, we think, that his dance set made money, he thinks.
- 7. Pearl Harbor Day catches the students with their pants down as "Hig" Williams throws a pop quiz. He's pretty cocky with that same Democratic President in for four more years.
- 11. A week before the holidays and we hear about a certain professor showing up for his classes with lots of Christmas spirit.
- 18. It's time for everyone to wake up and live for two weeks.

- 3. The herd is back in the stables after a short time, too short, in greener pastures.
- 7. The air leaks out of Generals' football as Chief of Staff quits. A few boys who were just hanging around his camp decide to quit too, just to be with him.
- 19. A long time ago on this memorable day someone was born. We are going to an assembly today to find out who it was.
- 25. Things are going to be looking pretty black around those white columns for a few days. The boys are starting their guessing games.

- 3. It's time for the lamps to be lowered and hell to be raised. The quarantine is over, men. Go out and get 'em.
- 7. You men have to come back again now, so you can find out what the World is all about. You can't learn out there. You have to read it in a book. Back to classes.
- 18. Something is going on in the gym tonight. At least there are a bunch of people up there making fools of themselves and they think they're pretty fancy.
- 22. Today we found out how to be famous. First of all marry a rich woman, and you too may be Father of a country—depending, of course, on the woman you marry.
- 25. Brian Bell appears in the paper in uniform—out of season. If you have any detecting to be done, call on him. He can bull his way around.

- 4. Our wrestling coach again becomes the most unpopular man in the Southern Conference. What nasty things they are accusing him of doing!
- 8. Bob Spessard turns in spectacular performance in his freshman and final year as our basketball coach, with first and second growth Wahoo scalps under his belt.
- 21. A lot of saps aren't doing much running as Spring begins. Tides are controlled by the moon, and most of the boys are mooning as class effort hits low tide.
- 26. Go home and be good sons to pacify your parents for those inspirations to bigger and better things that will be arriving soon—known as Mid-semester Reports.

- 3. We are back from home as we should be, only to hear that damn ringing sound that is so noticeable around here on Sundays General Lee's door chimes.
- 12. Everyone was walking around the campus today with his tongue hanging out—don't get the wrong idea—they have been licking our new stamp.
- 13. A prominent student was told today, by you know who, that his marks are indicative of degeneration. His response was to the effect that he has never generated so much in his life.
- 23. Mr. Mattingly got his hair cut today; a motorist drove through McCrum's window, blinded by the reflection.
- 27. Dr. Phillips is walking up and down the railroad track under the footbridge, looking for the president of the railroad. He may not find him, but he is on his track.

- 7. May Day at Sweet Briar, and a prominent student misinterprets the day. He keeps walking around saying "May 1?" to every girl he sees.
- II. A Freshman sits and watches a bee buz around a little flower for an hour, thinking about a long involved story his mother told him before he came down here. He still isn't sure it's all true.
- 20. Big preparations are being made for the last party before exams. Adair Hutton has sold out of blankets, and there's no privacy to be had at Goshen.
- 30. Final exams will be on tap for the next few days, and after that something else will be on tap for Finals. When it is all over, we say to all of you "Au Revoir, bonne chance, and let's get the hell out of here."
